$25 IN GOLD TO BE GIVEN SCHOOL CHILDREN BY TABB

Once again the Tabb Theatre proves its progressive policy by announcing the booking of "Winners of the West," the first continued feature ever offered the public taken from American history. "Winners of the West" is said to be a radical departure from the old type of "shoot 'em up" western serials, which have in part been responsible for some of the present day censorship agitation against school children attending such shows. While we feel it is no worse for a child to see a picture in any form which is taken from novels and books than it is to read the novel or book itself, yet the fact that American history is now to be offered our children in serial form will no doubt meet with the hearty approval of not only the parents and school teachers, but the public in general, and the Tabb Theatre's announcement that it will offer October 21 the first chapter of "Winners of the West," which is taken from American history, will no doubt prove a most timely booking.

To make this a double event for every child in Mt. Sterling, Mr. Small announces in The Advocate that the Tabb Theatre will give $25 in gold to the school child writing the best story on the "Winners of the West," the new great American history continued feature. Here is a chance that no school child can afford to overlook. For full particulars relative to this cash prize see ad in this issue of The Advocate.

RED CROSS WORKING FOR HEALTHIER U. S.

Thousands Aided by Instruction
In Care of the Sick, Food Selection and First Aid.

How the American Red Cross guides thousands of persons to health is shown in a summary of the society's activities in the health field based upon the annual report for the last fiscal year. Through its Nursing Service, its Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick courses, nutrition classes, First Aid classes, Life-Saving classes and Health Centers and in numerous other ways designed to acquaint masses of citizens with proper methods of living, the Red Cross carried its message of health into all parts of the country.

The work of the Red Cross during the war in its traditional field of nursing, furnishing the military and naval establishments of the nation with 19,877 nurses, is well known. And there are today 37,787 nurses registered with the American Red Cross and subject to call in emergency. During the fiscal year, 1,851 Red Cross nurses were accepted for assignment to Government service, 388 by the Army and Navy and 1,163 by the United States Public Health Service.

In addition to the nurses enrolled by the Red Cross for Government service, the Red Cross itself employed a total of 1,348 public health nurses in the United States and Europe. By far the greatest number was employed in the United States, 1,257, while 81 were in foreign service.

Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick classes, giving thorough instruction in the proper care of the sick in instances where the illness is not so serious as to require professional nursing care, during the fiscal year numbered 5,179. A statistical picture of the Red Cross operations in this field follows:

New classes formed during
year 5,179
Classes completed during year. 6,299
New students enrolled 101,065
Students completing course.... 73,432

What the Red Cross accomplished in giving proper instruction through its Nutrition Service is indicated by the following table:

New classes formed during
year 142
Classes completed during year. 186
New students enrolled 2,341
Students completing course.... 2,013

In addition to the above, a total of 22,006 children were given instruction in the proper selection and preparation of foods.

Through its 260 Health Centers, the Red Cross reached 90,252 persons. In these Health Centers, 4,015 health lectures were given and 780 health exhibits held.

In the United States last year, 75,432 persons were killed and 3,500,000 injured in industrial accidents. To prevent this enormous waste the Red Cross held 5,100 first aid classes with a total of 101,000 students enrolled.

HENS FOR BREEDING BEST SELECTED NOW

With the culling season almost over and the loafer hens removed from the flock the next important thing for poultry raisers of the state to do in order to increase the profits from their flocks is to select the hens that are to be kept for breeders, poultry specialists say. This is the logical time of year to select the breeders, according to J. R. Smyth, field agent in poultry for the College of Agriculture, since it is possible to distinguish them now by following the culling method whereas in the spring all birds in the flock will look alike. The hens that are laying now are the ones to keep as breeders because experience has shown that they are the heavy layers, the specialists say.

It is important that the hens to be used as breeders have large capacity which is indicated by a broad back and deep body together with high vitality which is indicated by the conformation of the birds. The back of the desirable breeder should carry its width back to the tail while the depth of the body measured between the ends of the breast and pelvic bones should be at least the width of four fingers when the hen is in laying condition.

General indications of high vitality in hens are a broad, deep head; bright, prominent eye, long, deep body; strong, parallel legs; stylish carriage and an active disposition. These are the points to look for in picking out the birds that are to be kept for breeders, the specialists declare. Details of the culling method which also may be used in picking on the birds that are to be eliminated from the breeding flock, are contained in Circular No. 101, which may be obtained free by writing the Experiment Station, Lexington.

THOROUGHBRED INTERESTS ATTACKED

Helm Bruce, Former Attorney for St. Louis Bucket Shop Syndicate Seeks to Destroy Racing

REPEAL OF THE PRESENT LAW MEANS THE RETURN OF THE BANISHED BOOK MAKERS TO KENTUCKY

The Kentucky Jockey Club Pays Over $300,000 Yearly In Taxes Into the State Treasury.

(The Thoroughbred Record.)

Kentucky is the home of the thoroughbred. It is the nursery of the finest breed of horses the world has produced. An infusion of thoroughbred blood enriches every other strain and gives quality, speed and courage to the colder breeds. Hundreds of thousands of acres are devoted to the raising of thoroughbreds in this State, and millions of dollars are invested in the industry.

At the coming session of the Legislature an organized effort will be made to destroy the thoroughbred interest, lay waste the fertile pastures, now valued at from $500 to $1,000 an acre, upon which they graze and reduce the peerless Man O' War, for whom $500,000 has been refused, to the worth of a plow horse.

Under the old book-making system which Mr. Bruce sought to perpetuate for his clients, the State did not receive a dollar; under the present law the Kentucky Jockey Club pays yearly into the State Treasury over $300,000. If Mr. Bruce succeeds in destroying the thoroughbred interest this immense sum will be entirely lost to the State and the book-makers will return to prey on the public.

The leader of this destructive crusade, falsely put forth as a moral issue, is Helm Bruce, a Louisville lawyer, who, nursing a personal grievance, and in grateful remembrance of his former race track clients, Celia, Tilles and Adler, the St. Louis bucket shop gamblers, seeks to prohibit all racing in Kentucky. When the Racing Commission was created by an act of the Legislature and the turf in this State was taken out of the hands of the book-makers who had disdained a royal sport, Helm Bruce, took a fee from this syndicate of bucket shop owners and sought to have the law declared unconstitutional. He was defeated in his selfish purpose and now that the scandal breeding book-maker has been driven out, and the turf is prospering under the pari-mutuel system, with the leading horsemen of Kentucky, selected by the Governor, giving their time to the enforcement of the law, Mr. Bruce seeks to destroy the entire turf structure and carry with it the whole thoroughbred interests of Kentucky.

Deshay Breckenridge, editor of the Lexington Herald, has defended racing, as now conducted under the State Commission, and in a series of frank and powerful editorials he has exposed the inconsistency of Helm Bruce, once an attorney for the book-makers, and now advocating the destruction of the pari-mutuels which would open the way for the return of Mr. Bruce's former clients to Kentucky.

Mr. Bruce pleads ignorance of the character of his clients or their selfish interest in the following statement to Mr. Breckenridge:

"A number of statements are made as to my knowing that certain alleged conditions, in connection with racing, formerly existed, such as that race tracks were controlled by bookmakers, that the bookmakers retained twenty to thirty per cent, and that all sorts of mascalities were committed under this system. The fact is I know none of these things.

It is said that I know that Celia, Tilles, and Adler, of St. Louis, owned Latonia and Douglas Park, and it is said they ran bucket shops and race tracks in various sections of the country. I recall that Celia had an interest in the Douglas Park Jockey Club, whether or not the other persons mentioned had any interest in it or not I do not know; and whether or not they ran bucket shops in other parts of the country, I do not know. It is said that I know these things because an attorney in a suit instituted against the State Racing Commission seeking to have the law creating that Commission declared unconstitutional. It is entirely true that I was an attorney for the Douglas Park Jockey Club in that suit brought to test the constitutionality of that act, but not at all true that I learned in that case or otherwise, any of the facts stated in the editorial as to gambling conditions on the race tracks."

Mr. Breckenridge makes the following reply:

"Mr. Bruce knew that Celia, Tilles and Adler, who ran bucket shops and race tracks in various sections of the country, controlled Latonia and Douglas Park; that there was a syndicate books on all the tracks controlled by them; that racing in Kentucky was in a deplorable condition; that the meetings were long, and under the syndicate system of bookmaking every sort of mascality was committed.

Mr. Bruce states: "I know none of these things."

"We avow that all statements made by us are true; that all intelligent men connected with racing or interested in racing know them to be true; that the facts were published in the daily newspapers, and that in the discussion in regard to the enactment of the bill creating the State Racing Commission were alleged and not denied. But we assert at its face value Mr. Bruce's statement: "I know none of these things."

"Mr. Bruce does recall that Celia had an interest in the Douglas Park Jockey Club. It is interesting to know that this much of what was general knowledge percolated through the atmosphere of sweet innocence that surrounded Mr. Bruce. If he had then had the slightest interest in the preservation of racing, either as a sport or as an aid to the breeding of horses or as a destructive agency of all that is good and noble, it seems to our mundane intelligence he would have informed himself as to the controlling factors in racing and certainly as to the personnel of his clients.

"It has been a long time since the State Racing Commission was created and the effort made by the owners of Douglas Park and Latonia—Celia, Tilles and Adler—to have that act declared unconstitutional. Mr. Bruce makes a very plausible statement of the basis of that act, but a statement that is our opinion is entirely misleading.

In the Garden of Life, young fellow, take your time. Hit the low places as well as the high ones. Travel the whole road. Skipping difficulties and responsibilities leads to the bad habit of shifting responsibilities, and responsibilities were meant to be shouldered, not skipped.

The High Cost of Living wasn't so much in the old days when a woman was satisfied to go down town with a lump of chalk tied in the corner of her handkerchief. Nowadays she wants a $5 Vanity Bag and has to buy about $6 worth of cosmetics to fill the blame thing.

power, which was never done before its creation.

Mr. Bruce may not know it, but we believe it to be a fact that the chief reason his known client, Celia and his actual clients, Celia's associates, wanted the act declared unconstitutional was that it made possible the destruction of their syndicate book.

We do not say that Mr. Bruce knows it, because after his statement we fear to state that he knows even the most widely known fact, but according to the grand jury of Jefferson County it is a fact "that a vast number of handbooks are being operated in the city of Louisville."

We have not heard of any movement by Mr. Bruce to stop these handbooks.

If Mr. Bruce had succeeded in the suit to declare unconstitutional the act creating the State Racing Commission there would be books on the race tracks as well as handbooks in the city. The law now prohibits handbooks in the city. But they exist in the city of Louisville. Yet Mr. Bruce starts a campaign against "legalized betting" and so far as we know takes no action against the illegal betting that is, in our opinion, infinitely the greater evil, which is rampant in his own home town.

In the communication published this morning, Mr. Bruce says:

"I have never pretended to make any accurate statement of what are the total profits of the Jockey Club, because I do not know them."

In a statement by him sent through the Associated Press from Louisville September 17, he says:

"A legalized giant monopoly enjoying the gambling privileges realizes a profit of two or three million of dollars a year out of this moralizing vice."

Again we apologize for having stated in a previous editorial that Mr. Bruce knows this statement to be inaccurate. But we avow that it is inaccurate and utterly misleading and known to be inaccurate by every man and woman who has even cursorily information in regard to the purses and stakes given by the Jockey Club, the expenses incident to the conduct of racing and the taxes paid by the Jockey Club.

• • •

Mr. Bruce closes his communication with this statement:

"Parimutuel betting on the race tracks may be a safer form of betting than bookmaking—safer for the gambler—but I am not interested in protecting the gambler."

Who is it Mr. Bruce is interested in protecting? As a lawyer he was interested in forwarding the interests of Celia, Tilles and Adler, who, though of course he never knew it, conducted bucket-shops and syndicate books. The present movement fathered by him will inure to the benefit of the bookmaker and handbook men, though equally of course he does not know this. As proven by the result in New York, the success of the movement he advocates will lead to a form of gambling that is most pernicious and as a rule crooked.

As revealed by the report of the grand jury in Louisville, the handbooks flourish even in the rural atmosphere that surrounds Mr. Bruce.

Not interested in protecting the gambler? Of course not. Not interested in the personnel of his clients who employed his services to destroy the State Racing Commission so that they might run race tracks in Kentucky as they ran them in Missouri—solely for the benefit of the syndicate book? Not interested in protecting the breeding interests? What is Mr. Bruce's real interest?

His letter reveals, according to his own statements, that Mr. Bruce has never been interested enough to ascertain even the most widely known facts in regard to racing and that he knows no more about it now than he knew when he was the attorney for Douglas Park and the bucket-shop bookmaking aggregation that owned it.

Why is Mr. Bruce giving his time and his high ability and great reputation and his money to this fight to have repealed the provision in the Kentucky statutes that was passed April 8th, 1898, years before he appeared as the attorney for the Douglas Park Jockey Club? He did not then attempt to have that section of the statutes repealed. The act creating the State Racing Commission was passed in 1908. The provision under which pari-mutuels are permitted was passed in 1898, thirteen years before that. During those years the bookmakers operated as unmolested on the race tracks as they now operate in Louisville and will again operate on the race tracks if Mr. Bruce succeeds in his present efforts.

It is provided in the act that Mr. Bruce's clients tried to have declared unconstitutional:

"Provided, That a refusal of the commission to grant any racing association a license or to assign any racing association at least forty days, if desired, shall be subject to the review of the courts of the State."

But Celia, Tilles and Adler were not satisfied with this provision. They wanted the whole act declared unconstitutional, for that act—though it may not be known to Mr. Bruce, who knows so little, as revealed in his communication today—provides:

"Said commission shall have the power to prescribe the rules, regulations and conditions under which running races shall be conducted in this State."

Under that provision the State Racing Commission has the power to prohibit bookmaking on its tracks and has exercised and enforced that

FARM AND HOME NEWS FROM OVER KENTUCKY

Practically every display made by Henderson county farmers in a recent exposition held at Evansville, Ind., was awarded a premium, a report from County Agent D. W. Martin states. These exhibits included those in hogs, chickens and fruit.

Exhibits made by junior agricultural club members at the recent King Community Fair, Knox county, featured the display of farm products, according to a report from County Agent Earl Mayhew. More than 75 hogs, 14 pigs, 12 calves and 20 entries of corn were displayed by the junior farmers.

Lee county farmers cooperating with County Agent T. H. Jones, and local business men are making plans for a corn and poultry show to be held at Beattyville in November, according to reports from the county. A number of banks in that district have already offered money for premiums.

So completely have Marion county farmers replaced scrub sires with purebred ones that there are only about five remaining scrubs in that district, according to results of a recent survey made by County Agent H. J. Childress. There are more than 80 purebred sires in the county at the present time and plans are being made to increase this number by replacing the remaining scrubs.

Laurel county farmers are showing increased interest in winter crops to protect their fields during the coming months, according to a report from County Agent F. B. Wilson. Large numbers of them have attended meetings in which the value of such crops has been explained. An increased acre of rye and vetch is expected to be seeded on farms in the county, according to present estimations.

As a result of a cover crop campaign conducted in Larue county by County Agent J. W. Jones in cooperation with farmers of that section 30 per cent more rye is expected.

American Legion News

The Bayern, first German liner to enter the New York harbor in seven years, docked within 100 yards of the American Legion's national commander's office there, but the legion took no part in the official welcome which New York's mayor extended. It was reported that Herr Captain Oscar Schwamberger of the Bayern commanded a German U-boat during the war, but a legion representative's effort to board the ship to confirm the report met with no success.

Marshal Foch will not come to America to be officially heard at the international disarmament conference in Washington, Paris dispatches are pointing out, although he will let his views on disarmament be known. The marshal's visit is a private one, it is being carefully explained, in response to the invitation of the American Legion to attend its convention. Premier Briand will head the French delegation to the conference, sailing October 29, one week after Foch.

In the Missouri state convention of the American Legion, it was announced that a resolution concerning Grover C. Berdell, draft deserter, was about to be introduced. As a member rose to read it, another shouted: "I move its adoption." A roar of approval came from the assembled delegates and it was unanimously adopted without having been read.

The only ex-service men who can vote in the coming city election of Birmingham, Ala., are those who became disabled from wounds or sickness during the world war, provided they do not own $500 worth of taxable property. The state legislature recently passed a law exempting ex-service men from payment of polltax. The court held the measure unconstitutional, automatically disenfranchising the former soldiers and sailors. The American Legion found a law, however, which enabled permanently disabled citizens to vote without payment of polltax, and obtained a ruling that minor physical defects will constitute the required disabilities. A man who lost his finger can vote, it is held, whereas a soldier who came through with all ten of his digits cannot.

Several thousand longshoremen who struck and tied up shipping on the Hoboken, N. J., waterfront returned to work long enough to unload the army transport Wheaton with 2,624 soldier dead on board, allowing American Legion posts to hold funeral services. The strikers, many of whom were ex-service men, declared they would take care of the bodies of their dead comrades despite the wage controversy and added: "We'd do it free if necessary."

The bodies of four unidentified soldiers, one from each of the four prominent American cemeteries in France, will be assembled at Chalon-sur-Marne and a noncommissioned officer of the American army in Germany will select one of them for return to the United States and interment in Arlington. An honor guard General Allen of the army of occupation, and a delegation from the Paris post of the American Legion, will accompany the body to Havre, at which port it will be placed on the battleship Olympia, which sails October 25 for the United States.

With the entire nation paused at noon in two minutes of silent prayer, American Legion service men of the world war from each state and territory will do homage to the unknown American soldier at Arlington national cemetery on Armistice Day. Medal of honor men also have been designated by the government as official mourners. Honorary pallbearers will be eight generals of the army and four admirals of the navy, with noncommissioned and petty officers as body bearers. President Harding will deliver the funeral address.

The boy, constant friend of the doughboys during their stay in France, was adopted by them and now is supported by the legion post.

Oscar E. Carlstrom, Aledo, Ill., newly elected commander-in-chief of the United Spanish War Veterans was one of the original committee of fifty members of the A. E. F. which organized the American Legion in Paris in 1919. He is also a member of the G. A. R. in Illinois by adoption.

Leo Hartley, Satana, Kas., the tallest American in service during the world war, will carry the colors of his post at the national convention of the American Legion in Kansas City this month. He stands 7 feet 2 inches in his socks. He was in the air service.

SODA IN WATER KEEPS POTS AND PANS BRIGHT

Washing pots and pans after each time they are used in hot, soapy water containing a small amount of washing soda is perhaps the best means of keeping these kitchen utensils clean and sightly, the home economic specialists at the College of Agriculture say. One pound of washing soda to four quarts of water makes a solution of the right strength to add to the wash water. Where it is necessary to scour the metal of the utensils to keep them in good condition it is said that whiting gives satisfaction with the least wear to the metal. The acids of such common foods as rhubarb, tomatoes, lemons or oranges will often remove discolorations. Rinsing the utensils with boiling water and drying them thoroughly before they are put away also is helpful in keeping them clean and bright, the specialists say.

Whiting moistened with any food acid such as those mentioned is good for aluminum. Washing soda should not be used on utensils made of this material since the alkali which it contains darkens the metal. A weak soda solution will often remove the grease from brass while whiting and a dilute acid will remove tarnish. Brass may be polished with rotten stone and sweet oil and dried with soft cloth. Copper may be cleaned in the same way. Kerosene will remove rust and grease from iron. Boiling utensils of this kind in a strong solution of washing soda also will remove rust. In some cases a strong abrasive such as emery may be necessary in order to remove all the rust. Too much scrubbing with harsh substances soon wears off nickel plate, the specialists say. Daily care with hot soap and water prevents tarnish while a polish may be obtained by using whiting moistened with ammonia.

Badly discolored tin may be freshened by boiling it a few minutes in a strong solution of soda and water. The tinware should be removed immediately after the boiling is completed and washed, rinsed and dried. Kerosene is the best cleaning agent for porcelain since abrasives used on this kind of material remove the glaze. Iron rust may be removed with dilute hydrochloric acid. Porcelain should be washed and rinsed thoroughly after the acid has been used. Better results can be obtained in making coffee and tea if the pots used for this purpose are thoroughly scalded, dried and aired before being put away, the specialists say.

RED CROSS RESCUED 600,000 FROM DEATH

Spent $1,200,000 for Relief of Famine Sufferers in China
Last Year.

To help overcome conditions of acute distress in five famine stricken provinces of Northern China, where millions of persons were affected by unprecedented shortage of food, the American Red Cross during the last fiscal year spent more than $1,200,000 $1,000,000 of which was contributed directly by National Headquarters and the remainder by various groups interested in the welfare of China.

Through the wide relief operations thus made possible it is estimated that more than 600,000 famine sufferers were saved from starvation.

To the end that similar prompt relief measures by the organization may always be possible the Red Cross is asking continued support by the American people by universal renewal of membership at the Annual Red Cross Roll Call, November 11 to 24.

The method of relief employed by the American Red Cross in its operations in China was particularly effective, for in addition to saving hundreds of thousands of lives it provided China with more than 900 miles of permanent roads that are sorely needed to prevent a recurrence of famine. At one time the Red Cross employed 74,000 Chinese workmen, paying them in food for themselves and dependents, this food being brought in from Manchuria and elsewhere.

MANY FARMERS PLAN FOR WINTER READING

Many Kentucky farmers are now making plans to follow helpful reading courses during the coming winter months if the interest shown by thousands who have had their names placed on the newly revised mailing lists being prepared by the College of Agriculture at Lexington is taken as an indication. During the past few months more than 5,000 farmers of the state have expressed their desire to receive free circulars and bulletins on timely agricultural problems from the institution while as many as 250 farmers have written to the college in one day to have their names entered. During a period of three weeks an average of 200 names were received each day. Poultry and livestock feeding and poultry housing are the most popular subjects with the farmers, who already have had their name placed on the lists.
